Week's World News

(Continued from Page 1) the catastrophe were many. A policeman rushed in and out of the gas-filled buildings bringing out victims until he too fell prostrate on the street. He died. A large agency continued at the rescue work until he was overcome by the gas and died. Cities the country over began to investigate hospitals for the purpose of preventing holocausts elsewhere.

Air men meeting in Cleveland registered unanimous complaint about the unsightliness of roof-littered back yards. No longer are erstwhile private views private. The airplane has changed all that. Air men hope architects will think of the birds eye view of buildings in the new designs, will beautify roofs. They also hope folks will keep backyards sightly, clean.
